This clause 3.1 shall survive termination of the Agreement.
- 3.4 The Supplier reserves the right to amend the Specification if required by any applicable statutory or regulatory requirements provided that this does not materially affect the quality or dimensions of the Components. If any such material affect is envisaged by the Supplier, it shall promptly notify the Customer of this whereupon both parties will endeavour, acting in good faith, to agree any consequential changes to the Order.

4. Delivery

- 4.1 The Supplier shall only be obliged to deliver the Components to the location set out in the Agreement or the Order, as appropriate. The Supplier may agree to deliver to an alternative location subject to the Customer agreeing to any additional costs incurred as a result. The Supplier may, where obtaining any Components from a third party, arrange for those Components to be delivered direct by the third party and in such cases references in these terms to delivery by the Supplier are to be construed accordingly.
- 4.2 Unless otherwise agreed in writing by the Supplier, delivery of the Components shall be completed on the completion of unloading of the Components at the agreed delivery location. If the parties agree that the Customer is to collect the Components, delivery shall be completed when the Components are loaded at the Supplier's premises.

Time is not of the essence under the Agreement or these Terms but the Supplier will use all reasonable endeavours to deliver Components on the dates and by the times set out in the agreed Order. On the Supplier becoming aware of any delay or anticipated in delivery, the Supplier shall promptly notify the Customer and shall use its reasonable endeavours to expedite delivery to minimise the delay.
- 4.6 The Supplier shall not be liable for any delay in or failure of delivery of Components that is caused by a Force Majeure Event (as defined in these Terms) or the Customer's failure to provide the Supplier with adequate delivery instructions or any other instructions that are relevant to the supply of the Components.
- 4.7 If the Supplier fails to deliver the Components and is liable to the Customer, its liability shall be limited to the costs and expenses incurred by the Customer in obtaining replacement goods of similar description and quality in the cheapest market available, less the price of the Components.
- 4.8 If the Customer fails to take delivery of Components on the due delivery date (or later date as notified by the Supplier to the Buyer in the case of a delay) then, except where such failure or delay is caused by a Force Majeure Event or the Supplier's failure to comply with its obligations under the Agreement:
- (a) delivery of the Components shall be deemed to have been completed at the time and on the date that the Components were tendered for delivery by the Supplier at the delivery location; and
 - (b) the Supplier shall store the Components until delivery actually takes place, and is entitled to charge the Customer for all related costs and expenses (including insurance) but may after [10] Business Days of storing the Components, resell or otherwise dispose of part or all of the Components and, after deducting reasonable storage and selling costs, account to the Customer for any excess over the agreed Order price of the Components or charge the Customer for any shortfall below the agreed Order price of the Components.
- 4.9 In the event of any under or over delivery of quantities of the Components the supplier will contact the customer in the event of any under or over deliveries of components to either close orders short or add increased quantities to existing orders to rectify in a suitable manner for both parties.
- 4.10 The Supplier may deliver the Components by instalments, which shall be invoiced and paid for separately. Each instalment shall constitute a separate Order and any delay in delivery or defect in an instalment shall not entitle the Customer to cancel the Agreement or any other instalment.
